Massage & Beauty

Pengerkatu 7 Työhuone (Massage & Beauty) [P7T] is a soft, intimate, discipline-fluid, hyperconnected, hybrid, polymorphic and polyphonic new kind of art-among-other-things space in the heart of Kallio district in Helsinki. It is operated by Finnish choreographer/researcher/certified masseur DA Simo Kellokumpu and Basque-French theatre director/researcher/ikebana instructor DA Vincent Roumagnac. Since July 2020, Kellokumpu and Roumagnac have been cultivating P7T as a modular and shape-shifting venue based upon an ecology of co-existence between contemporary art (installations, performances), artistic research (seminars, publications, talks), professional body conditioning, and seasonal ikebana (Japanese flower arrangements) workshops.

Located at street level, consisting of a shop window and entrance door, P7T is in the site of a former beauty salon. In response to this architecture, location, and history, P7T's activity and experience is purposely determined by the spatio-temporal settings and the attending dynamics of a massage cabinet. One, indeed, always comes to P7T for a “treat”, whether for a massage, an art, a research and/or a flower -treat. As is commonly done to book a therapist appointment, P7T's visitors are invited to reserve their private visit not only for massage but for all the activities/events happening in P7T through an online booking-system. The space offers a soft space to have a manual therapy treatment or to stay, face-to-face, or body-to-body, with a piece of art, to take part in a flower workshop, or to follow a research gathering. Massage attendance and the other activities are not happening simultaneously, but they are assembled weekly in the venue schedule that repeats, therefore, from week to week, from August to June.

On the economic side, there is a fee for the massage and workshops, but the art and research is free. In simultaneity with the dramaturgical input, the remunerative massage activity and the workshops are economically thought as primary financial resource to cover monthly expenses to sustain P7T, and to enable the art and research program.

P7T's art and research program is designed around a cluster of themes and questions stemming from the hosts' artistic and research-based concerns such as space/outerspace, time/multitemporal ecology, climate emergency/techno-mutations, queer(ing)/transformative processes, intermediality/inclusiveness... among other contemporary topics. Redoubling the latter, meta-matters are also addressed such as context-responsivity in relation to P7T's identity and dramaturgy, (pre/post)-pandemic relational aesthetics, and investigative and transdisciplinary gestures that implement the connections between art and research. P7T aims at being curatorially diverse. So far P7T has lined up both recognized and young emerging Finnish and international artists and researchers. There is also a program within the program called Ranska Series, which is curated by Roumagnac and which brings to Helsinki the work of relevant French contemporary artists.

P7T was designed by Kellokumpu and Roumagnac after 10 years of collaboration. Their partnering as an artistic binome finds its origins in their shared experiences of deviating from 'straight choreography' and 'straight theatre', and their inherited systems of production, in which they both worked during 10 years before tangential in the 2010s.

Their common questioning, as a duo and as soloists, of the very infrastructures of performing arts, in relationship to their shared concern for a general ecology update, have generated a process of queering, destabilizing, expanding their practices until launching P7T as a project where the need and dynamic of re-ecologizing their work and life have found a shelter, a workspace, and a stage to share.

Dramaturgically set on the three-fold poetics of melange, metamorphose, and treat, P7T is a new kind of space, finding continuity in the genealogy of artist-run spaces. But it also finds its specificity through differentiating from this history of self-emergence and DIY, in the hosts' ambition to invent and develop a complex model of new kind of hybrid space, within a domestic and international approach. In that perspective P7T is a post-critical project by two middle-career, already-emerged and recognized artists and researchers, aiming at rethinking historical oppositions (institution Vs independence / big stage Vs small stage / freelance Vs entrepreneur etc...), at reinitializing activism through ecodramaturgy stakes, and, most of all, at developing (and this is claimed as a form of activism) a new kind of way of life, or lifestyle, which surrounds and envelops all P7T's activities themselves: a revised ecology of practices, a mixed economy slipping through the net of mainstream art logics of productions and obligations of efficiency, a new kind of place in which art is entangled with other life-practices, formations and circulations within the shared space-time of the contemporary city.

Based on this vision, the duo launched, intentionally in the middle of the pandemic to take care of the maintenance of a link with others, P7T as an artistic project as a whole, an experimental zone that emerges at the intersection of a diversity of possibility of touch, a multiplicity of materialities, histories, stories, interweaving a contemporary common beyond dominating disciplinary distinctions and face-values built on straight dichotomies. Massage, art, research, flower treatments are in P7T timely juxtaposed and poetically entangled as interplaying mediums for feeding and growing processes of re-attention. From those interplays is generated a singular multiple space, whose paradoxical plural oneness depends on constant metamorphoses and enables a variety of relational potentials for the visitor.
